Defense Committee Adds Twenty More Air Raid Wardens

Antioch Legion Opens Meeting to Township Defense Committee

The monthly meeting of the Antioch Legion Post Thursday night was cut short and the meeting was turned over to the township's staff of air raid wardens for the transaction of business and to effect a better organization.

During the Legion's brief business session the Legionnaires accepted the offer of Hans Von Holwede to stage a benefit musical festival at the high school in the near future for the benefit of the Post's military service fund. The collection of fire arms, including revolvers, rifles, shotguns and knives that had been collected by the Legion was turned over to officials from Great Lakes Naval Training station. Lt. Corbitt addressed the gathering and expressed praise for the Antioch Post for their full cooperation in the civilian defense program.

After purchasing a $100 war bond and the hearing of committee's reports on the dance to be held at Lake Villa on May 1, the meeting was turned over to the air wardens.

Commander Roman Vos of the township warden staff announced the following changes in zone wardens: No. 4, Ben Burke; 5A, Henry Pape; 10, Victor Bown; 13, Henry Rentner who is also in charge of zone 3. Zone 15 is still open.

Add 20 New Wardens
Since the meeting Thursday night, twenty new members have been added for civilian defense work, Commander Vos said today. Others who wish to volunteer their services may call Antioch tel. 15 (days) or 131-J (evenings).

In charge of civil defense transportation is Dr. G. W. Jensen; and L. G. Strang was given supervision over civilian defense mortuary work. James Stearns was instructed to investigate the cost of a new fire alarm siren that can be heard clearer in the surrounding area. Commander Vos requested that consideration be given to a proposed summer school of instruction in civilian defense and in first aid. Fred J. Berg discussed the idea of having a planning committee, and Mrs. Vincent Nedbal was asked to get women volunteers for assistant air wardens.

Request was made that questionnaires distributed to householders some months ago be filled out and returned at once to their air raid wardens or mailed to Roman Vos, Antioch. Questionnaires may be obtained from Mrs. Vincent Nedbal. Call Tel. 196-J.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The ordinary machine gun is too cumbersome for our Marines, especially for parachute troops. So the Marines have adopted new models of the Reising sub-machine gun, a .45-caliber weapon.

The new gun used by the paratroopers is a compact model with a pistol grip and a steel-frame stock which folds out of the way when not in use. You can help buy these for our Boys in the Solomons and elsewhere with your purchase of War Bonds. Join the Payroll Savings Plan and let a "Top" that ten percent."

New Legionnaire

Louis H. Shultis, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shultis of Antioch is the first veteran of the current world war to be admitted to membership in the local Legion Post. ## Chicagoan Dies In Flames As Cottage Burns

Roy J. Beyette, 61, Victim as Gasoline Stove Blast Burns Two Homes

Roy J. Beyette, 61, 1336 George street, Chicago, was burned to death late Sunday afternoon when a gasoline stove explosion spread flames through a three room cottage in the Valmar subdivision at Camp Lake in Kenosha county. The fire that brought death to the Chicagoan spread to and destroyed a second cottage in the subdivision before the flames could be brought under control.

Investigation of the tragic accident by Coroner James A. Crossin, Undersheriff Jesse R. Preston and Deputy William P. Schmidt disclosed that the fire had started as Beyette prepared a late Sunday meal in the kitchen of the cottage which is owned by Paul J. Serateck, with whom the victim lived in Chicago.

A check of incidents leading to the fire death of Beyette disclosed that he came to the cottage Saturday to spend the week-end at the lake with Peter J. Linden, 68, Serateck's father-in-law.

Linden in a statement to the local authorities, indicated that they had spent the night and early Sunday hours resting at the cottage and working about the place. Shortly after 4 p. m., Beyette went to the kitchen to prepare a late Sunday dinner. Linden was listening to the radio in another room of the cottage, when Beyette rushed in, reported that the stove had exploded and that the cottage was afire.

The two men ran from the building and as the flames appeared to spread through the kitchen Beyette procured a bucket of water and re-entered the cottage to extinguish the blaze.

Linden, remaining on the outside, heard Beyette shout and at almost the same moment heard a window in the room on the opposite side of the house shatter. Linden broke out a window of the kitchen, but was unable to see Beyette because of the dense smoke in the room. He ran for assistance.

The Wilmet Volunteer fire department was summoned to the scene, but when the firemen arrived the entire place was aflame and a cottage nearby, owned by J. Wagner, Chicago, had ignited and was burning furiously. The firemen were able to enter the building only after the small frame structure had been razed by the flames. They found Beyette's body, charred beyond recognition, in a bed room of the place. He had apparently been overcome by smoke before he was fatally burned.

Authorities, investigating the fire, ruled the death was a result of an accident and indicated that after Beyette had re-entered the building, the flames spread too rapidly to permit his escape or allow a rescue.

Herbert Sarbacker, chief of the Wilmet Fire department, indicated that no estimate of the loss in the destruction of the two small summer cottages was available today.

George Beyette and Mrs. Bernice Fick, both of Chicago, son and daughter of the fire victim, came to Kenosha Monday to claim the body. The remains were taken to Chicago for cremation.

Thrill Seekers Often A Menace, Firemen Declare

Fire Fans Violate Speed Ruling and Hinder Work of Firemen

Pointing out the danger and the hindrance to firemen in answering alarms often caused by those who wish to see the blaze of a burning building, Chief Louis Van Patten of the Antioch Fire department, today directed attention to the state law which prohibits the driver of any vehicle other than one on official business from following fire apparatus traveling to a fire. Motorists following a fire truck also usually violate the 35 mile speed ruling, firemen said.

Section 96, Article 14 of Revised Motor Vehicle Law of Illinois states: "Following Fire Apparatus Prohibited.—The driver of any vehicle other than one on official business shall not follow any fire apparatus traveling in response to a fire alarm closer than 500 feet or drive into or park such vehicle within the block where the fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm."

"Fire fans who habitually rush to fires, of course are innocent of any desire to hinder firemen in their work, and are merely seeking whatever thrill is offered by a burning building," Assistant Chief Herman Rosing told the News today. Many times, according to firemen, cars not only follow the fire trucks closely but they park in roadways, blocking the entrance of other fire equipment and sometimes hinder the shifting of fire apparatus. All of which is not only a violation of law, but constitutes a real hazard to firemen as well as to the fire fans themselves.

Such cases, if reported, may affect the motorist's status regarding gasoline rationing cards, firemen said.

To Hold County-Wide Air Raid Test April 27

Third Monthly Practice Set for Tuesday; No Blackout

The third of a series of County-wide air raid tests will be held on next Tuesday, April 27, 7:00 to 7:30 p. m. While air raid wardens and other units of the civilian defense organization will function during the test in exactly the same manner as during a real raid, civilians will not be included in the test. Traffic will continue in a normal manner and no blackout will be required.

Roman B. Vos, local civilian defense chief, explained today that the tests were mainly to improve communications and to perfect operating technique of the defense system.

The warning signal in Antioch will be a two-minute blast of the fire siren.

Many years ago he had worked as a farmer and well-driller, but in later years had turned his attention to managing his real estate. He subdivided land at Lake Villa, now known as Thorne's Cedar Lake subdivision, and also subdivided a tract of land in Antioch more than 20 years ago along Chestnut and Bishop streets. This subdivision also bears his name.

Those who have been called from Lake Villa include: Dean Robert Weber, Dorr Brewer Cremin and Edward Walter Paske.

Pvt. William A. Johnson writes: "I have been receiving the Antioch News every week and thanks a lot. It makes a guy feel as though he was right there. I hear from a few of my old classmates—not many left I guess. Every time I read the News some one else is leaving. I have moved again to Camp Candoit, but my address is the same."

Writing from somewhere in Australia under date of March 28, Lieut. A. W. Kucera informs his father, Adolph Kucera, that he has received letters from several people of this locality which he intends to answer just as soon as business down under slows down a bit. The Lt. says he has accumulated many Jap "souvenirs." Lt. Kucera praises his commanding officer, Col. Joe Bradley, a West Point man, stating that "he is one of the smartest men I know, and a person couldn't ask for a better man to work with." Regarding the memorial service held there that day, Kucera writes: "This morning we had a Memorial Service for the boys who lost their lives while we were fighting in New Guinea. All of the men's names were read off, followed by a wonderful sermon by the Division chaplain. I noticed several of the men leave the field with tears in their eyes. Some of the men had lost their brothers, cousins, or pals, and it was a difficult thing to bear. I lost my platoon sergeant one day while we were engaged in heavy fire with the enemy. The people at home will never be able to realize the sacrifice that some of these boys are making over here."

Of the total vote, Rentner received 48, Powles, 51, Wagner 48 and Rosenfeldt 47.

Three spoiled ballots were found in the box, intended as write-in ballots carrying the names of James Stearns, Cleve Vos and George B. Bartlett.

Antioch Supervisor One of Three New Board Members

William A. Rosing, elected supervisor of Antioch township on April 6 to succeed Barney Naber, attended the first meeting of the Lake County board of supervisors held on Monday. Appointments to committees will be made at the next meeting of the board and it is believed that Supervisor Rosing will receive appointments to important committees as he has had considerable experience gained when he served as Supervisor of Antioch township from 1929 to 1935.

Chaos Must Be Averted

Government officials have yet to perfect a definite food production and distribution program. In the meantime, farmers and merchants are struggling desperately in a maze of red tape with a steadily deteriorating labor force to feed and clothe the nation, to say nothing of the armed services. They are asked to fight a total war against the Axis, and at the same time are obliged to fight for survival in the insane Washington war of bureaucrats. It is an appalling situation.

The National Association of Food chains has warned that American consumers will go hungry this year unless the government moves promptly to solve the pressing manpower and supply problems confronting the food industry. It says: "The situation already has reached the stage where it is creating a serious problem of getting an adequate supply of food distributed to communities and to individual consumers."

Unless corrective measures are taken without delay, there is danger in the not distant future of hunger and food riots. Representatives of chains, independent retailers, wholesalers and food processors have reported that following the "work or fight" order of the War Manpower Commission, experienced employees left in droves for "essential" war jobs. Labor turnover in these industries is now at the rate of 10 per cent a week. The government's price control and rationing programs, together with efficient distribution, are directly threatened by removal of experienced men from behind the nation's retail counters.

A determined Congress must bring order out of chaos.

Preserving the Source of Prosperity

Big Labor, like Big Government, has been a product of Big Business, and here again the tendency is to govern from the top-down instead of from the bottom up. Abuses in the field of labor, as in the field of business, often tend to be exaggerated. But prosperous business is the only guarantee that labor has that it may earn good wages. Steadily employed labor at good wages is the only guarantee that business has of a market in which it may dispose of its goods and services with profit. The best way to increase government revenue is to improve business, private business, and thus to increase employment by private enterprise.

Mankind is in search of the formula by which the responsibilities and duties of each group may be defined and democratic controls established. Instead of each of these various divisions of society grasping for the last ounce of advantage for its own members and thereby following the sad pattern of the past in which wars over ownership and distribution of a scarcity have seemed to dominate history, we must step forward into the new era of abundance which can be attained by intelligent cooperation.

We do not want the government to run the whole show. The natural and inevitable result of concentrated power is the limitation of growth. The progress of the world in letters, in art, in science has been the work of free man, so democratic society must, first of all, make absolutely certain that no arbitrary power, whether it be exercised by private or public authority, shall be permitted to restrain the activities of men.

Confounding Its Enemies

For the past decade promoters of socialized power in the United States have used every artifice to prove that the country faced a power shortage in the "immediate future," as justification for their program to spend unlimited millions of public funds for government-owned power developments.

Well, the "serious" power shortage never occurred. In the face of the nation's greatest emergency, the private electric industry has met the demand for power in every instance, not only the abnormal loads for war industry, but the requirements of the home, the farm and all other civilian activities.

This is no stroke of luck; it is in line with the record of this industry since its inception. Its ability to meet and keep ahead of wartime and civilian requirements is not limited to any one area, but is universal throughout the country because Class One utility systems are furnishing 85 per cent of the power demands of the country, and are maintaining a construction program which assures a dependable reserve well ahead of demand.

A Case for Congress

"Any law that holds people in bondage is bad and un-American. Yet the current income tax law makes peons of all taxpayers, because it forces them to start each year in debt for previous year's income taxes," says Florida National Bank, of Jacksonville, Florida.

"Such a situation contains the seeds of ruin. Any taxpayer whose income is suddenly reduced is likely to be unable to pay his debt excepting under circumstances that impose great sacrifices on his family, or, in the case of business, possible bankruptcy."

Postwar States' Rights

Encouraging in these days of increasing centralizing of authority in Washington bureaus, is the tenor of a recent twelve-state conference on postwar problems.

Here, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, together with Governor Herbert O'Connor of Maryland and Governor J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, demanded that the powers granted the Federal Government in the prosecution of the war be returned to the States when peace comes.

As Governor Dewey pointed out, "powers essential to the freedom of the people" can be endangered if "polluted by the exercise of control over essentially local matters."

Demonstrating the "dangers and difficulties" resulting from the direction of local problems from the central seat of government, Governor Dewey cited Federal handling of the food problem. He said that, although the States had "foreseen the catastrophe for many months," the Federal government "never saw the problem—never acted on it until a few weeks ago—never even reversed its crop restriction program in time."

Other speakers at the meeting looking squarely at the postwar situation, were of the opinion that free industry will be the chief source of jobs after the war, and that government can help industry in its task by adopting "constructive fiscal and monetary policies and establishing a climate in which free enterprise can flourish."

*This Spring
is Different!*

—AND THE SPRING TUNE-UP OF YOUR CAR SHOULD BE DIFFERENT, TOO!

NO MORE TOP SPEEDS!

You'll be driving at "35-and-under" this spring—and your car's timing, circuit breaker, carburetor, spark plugs, choke and heat controls should be adjusted for smoother low-speed performance.

NO MORE HIGH-OCTANE GAS

We use lower-octane gas today, so our flyers may have high-octane fuel. To prevent wasteful "pinging," your engine should be readjusted to its new diet. Whatever service work may be needed, we do the job right.

LESS GASOLINE

In addition to giving your car a gas-saving, springtime engine tune-up, you should also have it thoroughly checked for other causes of fuel waste, such as dragging brakes, leaky gas lines or the use of too heavy lubricants for today's low-speed driving.

LESS DRIVING

Your generator and voltage regulator should be put in top condition now to guard against the possibility of a rundown battery later on. Your battery itself should be checked at regular intervals.

CARS ARE BEING DRIVEN LONGER

As your car's mileage goes higher—as your brakes, lights, tires and steering system grow older—a thorough check-up of these features becomes vital to the safety of you and your family.

SLOWER DRIVING—SHORTER TRIPS

When you don't drive very much or very fast or very far, it's extremely important to keep fresh, clean oil in your engine at all times—because at slow speeds your crankcase ventilation system doesn't have much chance to prevent oil dilution.

THIS wartime spring, it's important that you get your car set not only for warmer weather, but also for the new kind of driving you're doing today. We offer a springtime service program specifically designed to do both of these jobs. Whether you drive an Oldsmobile, or some other make of car, come in and find out about this special Oldsmobile service!

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Come on,
Let's WIN this war!

If we should lose the war, life would not be worth living.

"But we won't lose it," you may say.

Listen, brother—in this world nothing's sure, unless you make it so.

This month it's up to us here at home to do our part, and then some, to make Victory surer—and quicker! To do it, we've got to lend Uncle Sam 13 billion extra dollars.

It isn't easy—but war isn't easy and Victory isn't cheap. It takes money—and more money—to buy planes, ships, tanks, guns and a million other things our boys must have to deliver that final, paralyzing knockout punch.

And it's a whole lot easier for us at home to lend our money than for our boys to fight through the hardships and dangers of deserts, swamps, jungles, ice-fields and sub-infested seas!

There are 7 different types of U. S. Government securities—choose the ones best suited for you!

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is told in this and the following chapters by four of the five naval officers who are all, that is, left of Major Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are: Lieut. Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. (The fifth officer, Lieut. Henry J. Brantingham, has since arrived from Australia.) The squadron, hand-picked by Bulkeley from volunteers, had come to the Philippines in the fall of 1941. They knew trouble was coming, but the events of December 7 were as much of a surprise to them as to anyone, because they thought the Philippines would be attacked first.

Lieut. Kelly, second-in-command, to whom Bulkeley delegated the task of telling most of the story, describes his preparations for war, hearing about secret operations orders, he went to the Officers' Club in Manila on the eve of Pearl Harbor and had a thick steak with all the trimmings. After receiving his orders from Bulkeley the next afternoon, he took three of the boats to Marikina, on Batana, where they were to report to the submarine tender for provisions and fuel. When they got there they found the tender had been ordered away. So they set up makeshift headquarters in native huts at Sisman Cove.

CHAPTER II—Lieut. Kelly continues: Refueling the boats from drums was a dangerous job. They found water was rust in the gas, but didn't know then that the gas had been sabotaged. Kelly had a badly gashed finger, but couldn't take time to go to the hospital. Lieut. Bulkeley describes the first big air raid.

CHAPTER III—Lieut. Kelly tells how he was sent to a tunnel hospital on Corregidor, where he met Peggy, a nurse. Survivors from the sinking of a shipload of refugees were brought to the hospital. Patients from Manila were also moved into the tunnel, and Kelly learned from them how badly the war was going.

CHAPTER IV—A member of a tank crew, trapped by the Japs, concludes his story of their escape as told to Lieut. Kelly in the tunnel hospital on Corregidor. Kelly tells of the heroism of the hospital staff, and especially of the nurse, Peggy, during a severe bombing. And sign Akers relates some of his experiences just before Manila fell.

CHAPTER V—Ensign Akers continues, and Ensign Cox adds his story of the fall of Manila. The PT boats pulled away safely from the blazing city. Lieut. Kelly tells how he spent New Year's Eve in the hospital, while Lieut. Bulkeley, discussed with the Admiral a plan of escape to China. Bulkeley tells how two of the boats, the 31 and the 34, went out into Subic Bay on a night raid.

CHAPTER VI—Lieut. Bulkeley continues: When the 31 boat didn't show up, Bulkeley, in the 34 boat, sneaked up to torpedo a cruiser. Later, the Japs learned what happened in the 31 boat. When the Japs saw the 34 boat, they fired. The Japs shot down the 31 boat. All but two of the men from the 31 boat finally returned. Lieut. Kelly persuaded the doctor to let him out of the hospital, and went out on patrol. They broke up a Jap landing party, then captured a landing barge.

CHAPTER VII—Lieut. Kelly continues: They captured a Jap captain and one of his men. Meanwhile the 34 boat, tired of being heckled by PT boats, sacrificed another ship as bait. But two of the original six torpedo boats had also been lost so far.

CHAPTER VIII—The torpedo boats took their final crack at the Japs off Bataan by sinking a 10,000-ton ship. March first General MacArthur surprised them by taking a ride in one of the boats. When he returned he presented Bulkeley with the order decorating him with the D.S.C. But everyone knew something was up. Lieut. Kelly talked with Peggy, the nice little nurse on Corregidor.

CHAPTER IX

"We were silent for a minute, and then she said, sure, she realized that—she always had known it might happen. But there was no use talking about it before it came—talking didn't make anything easier. But if I did have to leave suddenly, without telling her good-by, where would I go?"

"Almost anywhere," I said, trying to sound vague and careless. I don't know whether it fooled her or not. But she was smart and may have guessed that either I really didn't know, or if I had orders, I should not talk about them. Anyway, after that we both sat looking out over the water in the dusk, and it was a long time before I could look at her or she looked at me."

"On March 10 Bulkeley made his usual trip to see MacArthur; this time he brought along all his plans and charts for the trip. The General went over and approved them, and also told Admiral Rockwell and his chief of staff that they were going along, which was the first they had known of the trip—they had thought we were going to China. There was also an ominous bit of news—some big Jap formation was reported coming down the west coast of Luzon in our direction. If it was true, it could only be the convoy bringing General Yamashita and his reinforcements. General MacArthur told Bulkeley we might be leaving very soon, and to come back the next day.

"That would be the eleventh of March. Bulkeley went over early in the morning and returned to us at noon. He called in not only me but the other officers, Akers, Cox, and Schumacher, and for the first time showed them copies of our secret orders and the charts he had worked out for our route. He made the point that we should all keep together, but if one broke down, the rest would go on, leaving it to make its way the best it could."

"If we met the enemy, we were to avoid them if possible. But if they gave chase and were gaining on us, so that an attack was necessary, the 41 boat, in which he would carry the General, his wife, and his son, would turn and run, and my boat, since I was second in command, would lead the attack to give the others time to escape.

"The last thing he told us was that we were leaving that very night. He left us hard at work on last-minute preparations but would return soon to complete his own.

"We didn't tell the men what we were up to or where we were leaving Corregidor," continued Lieutenant Kelly, but they got their orders to dump that landing-force equipment, to load all spare parts on the boats, move the crew's mess gear back into the ship's galley, and pile the decks with drums of gas.

"And while we were doing it, who should walk in but Nat Floyd of the New York Times; exactly the last guy in the world we wanted to see. Sure, we liked him. He said he'd been up to the lines with the army, and then on a hunch, no particular reason, thought he'd drop in on us and see if we had any news. Then he kind of glanced around. What were those planks on the deck for? And all that gasoline on the wharf? Somehow the place looked a little torn up. When did we think we'd get off for China? Not for quite a while? Oh, he just asked for no particular reason, maybe because it almost looked like we were packing up—and so on. I tried every way in the world to get rid of him before Bulkeley got back, but it was no use; he stuck like glue.

"Then Bulkeley and I went into a huddle. Here Nat was. And bound to get suspicious of the activity. After we'd gone, the story would be almost sure to get out.

"He's a pretty nice guy," I said. "Don't suppose we could take him with us, do you?"

"Well," said Bulkeley. "I've got to go along now. But if Nat should happen to show away in the lozaret, and we didn't find him until we were out to sea, why then the story certainly wouldn't get out, would it?"

"And you know, that's just what happened. But in the meantime there were other things on my mind. Mostly it was how I was going to get hold of Peggy. There was no telephone at the hospital. She'd said she would phone me sometime between six and seven o'clock today about that date of ours on the fifteenth.

"But there was a lot of traffic over the signal-corps field telephone, and she might not get to use it until almost seven. And I was due to pick up my passengers and be gone forever by 6:30 tonight. And I'd never get to say how much I liked her and what a swell, brave kid she was, and good-by.

"So I sat down and tried to write it in a letter, which I could leave at Corregidor on my way out, and which she would get when she got back from duty in the lines, and then at least would understand.

"I had just finished it about 2:30 and put it in my pocket when they came paging me for a telephone call on that signal-corps phone. It was Peggy—her duty hours had been changed, and she was afraid if she waited until seven to call I might be out on patrol, and she might miss me. She just wanted to tell me she'd been able to fix everything for our date on the fifteenth, and was that date all right with me, could I make it?"

"No," I said. The phone was on the wall in the Philippine army shack, and the shack was crowded with soldiers—in addition to all the goys probably listening in on the line.

"Well, she said, maybe she could change it for the sixteenth, if that would be better for me.

"It wouldn't be any better," I said. "Nothing would be any better."

"Well," she said, and she sounded a little mad, "what is this, anyway?"

"I guess it's good-by, Peggy," I said.

"Then there was a long silence, and when she spoke again I almost thought it was someone else, her voice was so changed. 'Where are you going?' she asked, very low. 'Can you tell me?'

"No," I said. "Can you tell me if you're coming back?"

"No," I said. "I can't tell you that."

"Then I guess it's really good-by," she said, and her voice sounded flat and a long way off. "But it's been awfully nice, hasn't it?"

"Listen, Peggy, I've written you a letter—only just then I heard the connection break. It seemed a couple of generals wanted to talk to each other. It was quite a while before I got it back again, and they told me she had waited fifteen minutes and had then gone. I've always hoped what the generals had to say to each other was important. Of course we weren't engaged. I didn't have a picture of her. In fact, the only thing I had was a few lines she'd scribbled on a piece of paper a few weeks before. We'd been idly talking about how we hoped to get out of the islands and agreed, half in joke, that whichever of us got out first would write the family of the other one of those reassuring letters about how wonderful life was on Bataan and how well and happy the other one had looked.

"Then I guess it's really good-by," she said."

"So, half in joke, she'd scratched the address of her married sister in San Francisco on the back of an old envelope. This I still had, and I intended to write her, and send it out by the plane which took MacArthur, telling her what a swell girl her kid sister was.

"Kelly's 34 boat was right on time," said Bulkeley. "We in the 41 boat picked up our passengers at Corregidor and met him and the other two boys at the turning light just outside the mine field at seven o'clock to the minute. We had twenty passengers in all in our four boats. With me in the 41 boat were General and Mrs. MacArthur, their little boy, and his nurse, and a few generals. Kelly in the 34 boat had, to start with, Admiral Rockwell, two colonels, and an army aviation captain. When one of the other boats later broke down, Kelly picked up a few more generals.

"But rank made no difference. Washington had ordered MacArthur to bring out the most valuable of his men, and so they were all specialists—there was even a staff sergeant, who was a technician, along with us, while thirty-odd generals were left behind on Bataan.

"We started out single file, my boat as flagship setting the pace for the other three. First we went fifty miles straight out to sea in the deepening twilight. We'd hoped to get out unnoticed, but suddenly we saw a light glimmer and glow on one of the Japanese islands. It was a signal fire—warning to the mainland that they'd seen us pass. If they had seen it on Luzon, that meant trouble for us—maybe bombers at dawn, maybe destroyers later on in the day. By eleven o'clock we made out the outline of Apo Island against the stars (there was no moon) and checked our navigation, which we were doing entirely by compass and chart. MacArthur and General Sutherland were pleased with the way it was going."

"I can't say that Admiral Rockwell was," said Kelly—"maybe because he knew more about the sea than the generals' did. I hadn't wanted to worry him, so I hadn't mentioned the fact that ours was the only one of the four boats which hadn't been overhauled, and was so full of carbon that we couldn't make much speed until the carbon was burned out.

"As you know, we'd intended to make a good speed, but I found my boat wouldn't quite do it. Pretty soon we were lagging fifty yards behind, then, after a while, two hundred. The Admiral didn't mention this for some time. But finally he said:

"Don't you think we're getting a little far apart?"

"We'll close in gradually," I said. And I tried to, but finally we were so far behind Bulkeley's flagship we couldn't see it with the naked eye.

"Damn it," said the Admiral. "Let's close up! And he wasn't giving it just as advice any more. But I was floored as to how to achieve it. I'd been giving her all the throttle I had for the past hour. Then I had an idea.

"I sent a whispered message to the engine room, ordering them to disconnect the throttle, and to push the carburetors up with their hands as far as they would go. We now had on every possible ounce of power, but the Admiral still wasn't satisfied.

"We're closing pretty slowly," he complained.

"Privately, I doubted that we were closing at all, but I only said, 'No use pushing her too hard, sir.'"

"But about five minutes later we really were closing. Bulkeley, noticing we were pretty far behind, had reduced his speed. But, with my throttle disconnected, I couldn't reduce mine, and it took me about a minute to get a message down there telling the engineers to take their hands off the carburetor levers and reconnect them with the controls on the bridge. During this minute we not only gained on Bulkeley's boat, but overtook it and went roaring madly past.

"In the darkness I could see the Admiral had squared around and was giving me a doubtful look. I could tell he thought he was riding with a madman, and I decided he would worry less if I told him the truth—that our maximum speed in this boat was something under forty knots. Any Japanese destroyer could easily make this maximum of ours, as the Admiral very well knew. But all he said was 'My God!' very softly to himself."

"It happened that we were just passing an island. The Admiral glanced over.

"How far are we from shore, Kelly?"

"About four miles, sir."

"Looks farther than that to me. Take a bow-and-beam bearing."

"Aye, aye, sir," I said. But of course I didn't have any instruments. So, making the 45-degree angle with two fingers, I sighted along them to a point ahead. When we came just abreast of this point, since we knew our own speed, it would give us roughly our distance from shore—very roughly. The Admiral noticed me sighting along my fingers.

"Don't you have a pelorus?" he said, sharply.

"No, sir," I said.

"H-m-m— I suppose the flag-ship has better means?"

"No, sir," I said. "They don't."

"How in hell do you navigate?"

"By guess and by God, sir," I said.

"My God!" said the Admiral, and this time he didn't say it so softly. "I hope," he added wistfully, "that we get there."

"At four o'clock in the morning, my engines suddenly stopped," recalled Lieutenant Kelly. "I knew the strainers were clogged with wax and rust, and it would take half an hour to clean them, which I explained to the Admiral, who was watching the other three boats disappear over the horizon."

"What time will we get to the rendezvous?"

"I made a fast mental calculation. 'About 8:30, sir.'"

"Dawn, as we both knew, would come at seven, and with it—if the mainland had seen that island signal fire—Japanese planes, looking for us."

"That's an hour and a half later than I like to be out," said the Admiral. Our plans, of course, called for running only at night, and laying up by day in the Coyo Island group, with a general rendezvous in a harbor of one of the central islands for our start at sunset.

"There are thirty or forty islands in the Coyo group, and just before dawn we began to make out the first ones—tiny mounds on the horizon ahead and around us. The flag-ship had the only detailed chart of them; all I had was a large-sized map of the Philippines, and on this the Cuyos looked like a cluster of some forty-odd flyspecks."

"When the Admiral asked how in the world we—without navigation instruments or chart—expected to make a proper landfall on the particular flyspeck that we all had selected as rendezvous, I explained we had provided for that; I knew its general location, and from Bulkeley's chart I had drawn a pencil sketch of this island. But again he was skeptical."

"It was eight o'clock (no planes as yet) before we saw what we thought might be the right one; as we drew nearer, the Admiral agreed that the hills and cove were exactly like my sketch, but when we entered the cove, it was empty. We circled the island—no sign of the other three boats."

"My God," said the Admiral, "what's happened to the General? We arrive, limping in late, and the others aren't here! Where can they be?"

Jackie Armstrong's Uncle Roy is home enroute to Missouri. Grandma Nader came back from Chippewa Falls to spend a day or two with him.

The fourth grade pupils have completed most of their work for the year. Some of them have read about fifty library books this school term. Claudette Brownlee has read the most.

Our music teacher, Miss Langworthy, who very recently became Mrs. Affeldt, was unable to be with us last Tuesday, but conducted our music class again this week. We are now completing our notebook on music. It is due in two weeks. A prize will be given to the three schools which win. It will be a statuette of Toscanini.

 Pearl Harbor. Following his furlough here he will report to Fort Bliss, Texas. . . . Armand has had many exciting experiences in the islands, which are under military rule, and are inhabited by many friendly Japanese and their descendants. The sergeant spoke at the Civic club meeting here Monday night, and also addressed pupils at the grade school Tuesday afternoon. . . . Armand's younger brother, Winsor, army cadet, who has been in training at Sky Harbor and at Northwestern University, but who is now in a new assignment,
 visited his brother and parents here Tuesday.

 A. F. C. Betty J. Grimes writes
 from Conway, Ark., to the Antioch Legion Post:

"I want to thank you for the copies of the Antioch News which you have sent me. Saturday is the one day of the week to which I look forward for I know I'll get a copy of the News at 'mall call'."

"I've seen a good bit of the country since I left Antioch early in March. I completed my four weeks of basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, and am now stationed at Arkansas State Teacher's College, Conway, Ark., attending Army Administration school. Basic training was a wonderful experience. Girls from all over the United States learned to live together and do things
 'army style.' The campus here at Conway is beautiful. It makes me feel as though I were back in college.
 We are learning the Army way of doing business so that we may take the place of men in army offices."

"I saw Lorraine Pape just before I left Fort Oglethorpe and we both expressed the wish that more girls from Antioch would join the WAAC."

"The world is really a small place, for many of the girls I have met have spent their summers in Antioch. The girl next to me at the Reception Center is a summer resident of Deep Lake."

"I want to express my sincere thanks again."

"Sincerely
 Betty J. Grimes."

 Pvt. Gene Dietz writes from Camp
 Barkeley:

"Just a few lines to let you know where I'm at and also to thank you for sending your little paper to me all thru maneuvers. I got it regularly down in Louisiana. Sometimes late at night, sometimes early in the morning, at any rate I sure got a kick out of reading it at any time."

The maneuvers were plenty rough,
 but we are all back at Camp Barkeley now and everyone seems to be none
 the worse from their experience.

What I like about your paper most is the letters from other fellows who are across the water or in some foreign land. I can imagine they must enjoy getting the news from the home town.

How is my fisherman pal Louie Nielsen? Wish I were home to do a little of my favorite sport.

Well, if we all continue to do our part this thing will be over sooner than we expect. We are back in camp going through an intensive training program they have laid out for us for the next three months, after that we don't know where we will go, maybe for a long boatripe.

Well, I sincerely hope you continue to send me your paper, as I really enjoy reading it."

Senior Is Accepted as Navy Air Cadet

(By June Spangard)
 Milton Smith, one of the outstanding upperclassmen of A. T. H. S. has been accepted as a naval air cadet in the V-5 program. Milton took his test, which lasted three days, during the first week of April. The examination was held in the Board of Trade building, Chicago, Ill. The test was given in different fields; a preliminary physical test, and a mental test which consists of grammar, physics, mathematics, and the ability to understand reading material. After that the candidate is taken before a board of three flight officers where his leadership ability is tested, and if accepted he is then sworn in.

To qualify for these tests a boy must be a high school graduate in the upper half of his class. He must not have passed his eighteenth birthday and must present three letters of recommendation.

Milton will go to a pre-flight school which will probably be at the University of Iowa, Iowa City. He will be enrolled in approximately two months after his eighteenth birthday which will be May 26. We all wish Milton good luck and "happy landings."

HOME EC. NEWS

(By Irene Ryan)
 On March 31 a group of girls from the third year Economics class took a trip to the Packing House in Antioch.
 The girls were studying meat and its preparation for dinners. They went through the different rooms and were shown the various retail cuts of meat.
 After this the girls were invited to stay and see the slaughtering of some animals. The class really enjoyed this interesting trip.

"ROMANTIC CHINA"

(By Judy Pregoner)
 Monday afternoon Mr. James White presented a very interesting talk on "Romantic China." He told us of his trip through China and showed pictures he and his twin brother had taken. The pictures, which had been taken in color, were beautiful.

Mr. White was dressed in the costume of a Chinese gentleman.
 He told of the Chinese customs and superstitions, such as their use of red, because it is supposed to chase away evil spirits. Consequently almost all their buildings are painted red.

The talk lasted an hour, but everyone was reluctant to have it finished.

Grade School Swing Band Plays for Students and Faculty

(By Dolores Morton)
 An example of fine music was displayed by the Grade School Swing band Friday afternoon for the students and faculty of the High school.
 This was a preview of the Grade school concert which on May 7, will be presented to the public.

Those included in the band were,
 Mary Jean Mapiothorpe and Joey Cosgrove, trumpets; Jane Nelson, Verna Mae Kufalk, and Bob Simon, saxophones; Russell Stowe, bass horn; Raleigh Burnette, drums, and Hans playing the piano. The first number,
 "Anchors Aweigh," was dedicated to Bill Chase as he leaves for the Navy the 26th. With this number the Hunter twins did a bit of baton twirling.
 The second number was "My Buddy" sung by Olga Hilmens, the third was "Alexander's Ragtime Band," and fourth, "When the Lights
 Go on Again," was sung by Dolly Ries.

The swing band had put in much time and practice to make this good, and they did it. Hans said they did well and the student body said the same. We want to take this opportunity to thank the participants of the program, and hope they will come back and entertain us again.

Bookkeeping Sets Used for Practice

(By Judy Pregoner)
 In Bookkeeping the students are putting into practice what they have learned in Fundamentals by the use of a bookkeeping set. In this set the students are keeping books for a partnership business. The practice is such as they would have in regular office routine. In this work neatness and accuracy are stressed as well as correct application of bookkeeping principles.

The last six weeks in bookkeeping will be spent on learning how to keep books for wholesale dealers, and then applying those principles in another bookkeeping set.

SENIORS PREPARE COMEDY

(By June Spangard)
 With only one more week before the presentation of the senior play
 "Best Foot Forward," the members of the cast are busy putting finishing touches on the production. The play is an hilarious farce dealing with the fun, the excitement, the mix-ups, and the troubles of 15 boys and girls who are gathered together at Winsor School for an evening of fun at the senior prom. Two girls for one boy, a blind date who doesn't enjoy her boyfriend, a Hollywood movie-star seeking publicity, and a riot at the dance all contribute to the fun and excitement.

"Best Foot Forward" will be presented on one night only, Friday,

Among the many electric machines used in the production of Army and Navy shoes, is the sole cutting machine. The cutting form is placed on the leather and this powerful hammer-type machine stamps out the heavy sole with lightning speed.

In the last room these electric machines join the sole to the upper which is drawn tightly over the last to receive its shape. The shoes then move on to sewing, lock-stitching, trimming and finishing machines which are driven by electric power.

Marching
to Berlin

For the long, hard trip to Berlin our millions and millions of men need good, comfortable clothing, as well as adequate food, and fighting equipment. They must have uniforms, underwear, socks and shoes. And Electric Power is on the job to meet their needs.

In the vast shoe-making program, for example, power is a vital necessity because electric machinery is used in almost every phase of manufacture. The skiving, sewing, lock-stitching, rounding and leveling, all require electric power machines for speed and quality work.

Supplying Electric Power to the shoe industry and all other industries engaged in war production in Northern Illinois, is our first responsibility. And to this job we are devoting the efficiency attained through long years of experience.

your 2 BUILDING PROBLEMS

Come in and talk them over!

Nearly every farmer today has two important building problems. The first is to get the small buildings and equipment to carry out 1943 production; the second is planning for the improvements that will be built in the future. We believe we can help you with both these problems.

While some materials are almost impossible to obtain, this isn't true of all items. Even though we may not have the exact materials you want, we can probably figure out some way in which you can get the small buildings, the repair and maintenance, or such lumber-built form equipment as feeders for poultry, hogs, cattle, or nests, troughs and other items.

Your second job is planning today for the structures you're thinking of building in the future. Careful planning now can assure better buildings, suited to your needs and budget.

In planning tomorrow's buildings, you'll find the designs of our 4-Square Farm Building Service very helpful. These designs cover a wide variety of farm buildings and equipment, all developed after careful field study, every one farm-tested. When you examine the working drawings, you'll see how advanced construction knowledge gives you better buildings without increasing cost.

We'd like to suggest that before you decide that materials are not available, that you come in and talk it over.
